

PODCAST TO FEATURE HISTORY AUTHOR/EDITOR RAY BOOMHOWER

As the calendar turns to a different year – and in this case a new decade – the focus must eventually be on the opportunities ahead. But with 200-plus years of state history and so many business stories to tell, forgive us as we go back in time once more.

In addition, we are complementing the stories, profiles and features in this issue of BizVoice® with an IN Chamber podcast discussion with Ray Boomhower, senior editor at the Indiana Historical Society (IHS) Press. One of the leading history writers of his generation, Boomhower has more than a dozen books to his credit with a new one on the way. His titles include biographies of Ernie Pyle, Gus Grissom and Lew Wallace among others. He has been the lead editor of IHS's Traces of Indiana and Midwestern History for 20 years.

Boomhower helped connect the BizVoice team with a number of the historians who served as expert resources for our stories. Our discussion with him will supplement the magazine and strive to bring additional elements of Indiana history to life.

January 21 is the release date for the IN Chamber podcast with Boomhower. Check indianachamber.com/podcast, or subscribe wherever you get your podcasts, every other Tuesday throughout the year for new conversations. The new year begins January 7 with Krista Skidmore of FlashPoint Leadership Consulting.
